TITAN

Leafy Timothy

TITAN is an early to medium variety of timothy selected for high sward density, good regrowth and long sward persistence.

TITAN Timothy was tested throughout BC as LISCHKA, the name used for this variety in Europe.

EFFECTIVENESS:

TITAN timothy has a semi-erect growth habit, is fairly tall in height, and is well suited to planting by itself or with other species. TITAN's head is short to medium in length, with low emergence in a regrowth situation. TITAN is leafier than other varieties, with wide, medium to dark green leaves. TITAN Timothy shows better regrowth than other timothies, widening the production window.

Timothy is arguably the most desirable grass for horse feed due to the lower protein level and the softness of the hay. Timothy is not well suited for production in drought prone areas as it requires moderate moisture to maintain growth reserves in the bulbous root system – it can handle moderate flooding and is useful in upland meadow hay production. It can be used on moderate to high elevation sites successfully. Timothy does not regrow vigorously after harvest.
